EXT. CITY STREET - RUNBY - DAY

This is a street in the heart of the small beach city of Venice. It has the garish patchwork look of a street which has gone to ruin. Too many neon signs. A yellow city transit bus rumbles past. A half a block back it is followed by a dark blue Jensen with a lone man driving.

1-A
INT. BUS - DAY

There are only four or five people on the bus. We center on a man seated just behind the rear exit door. He is old, about sixty, and can only be described as a wino. He is characteristic of this breed in every way -- unshaven, dirty, his overcoat in tatters. His name is Harvey Butler. He is leaning forward, trying to see what is going on, as the bus comes to a stop and takes on a passenger -- an old woman. He looks disappointed and leans across the aisle and taps a black man, who is asleep. The black man looks over at Harvey without changing his slumped down position.

BLACK MAN

Whatta you want now?

HARVEY

(a little drunk)
What time is it?

BLACK MAN

Ten past two and ten minutes from now it'll be twenty past two and ten minutes after that it'll be half past, so now you don't hafta ask me for twenty minutes and by then I'll be off the bus.

Harvey turns back and looks out the window of the bus, which is moving again.

INT. BLUE JENSEN - DAY

The man behind the wheel is heavily muscled and could be considered handsome. He is about thirty with wavy blonde hair and a classic profile. His muscles flex under a polo shirt. His name is Jerry Grimes. There is a voice speaking in French inside the car.

4-A ANGLE - TAPE CASSETTE - DAY

It is custom mounted in the dash of the car, and is turning slowly. This is a Berlitz-type tape and the voice speaking in French pauses from time to time for the listener to answer the question. Jerry drives, keeping the bus in view, and practices his French.

VOICE
Est ce que Jean est un mauvais garçon?

JERRY
Non, Jean n'est pas un mauvais garçon.

VOICE
Comment est-il Jean?

JERRY
Jean est un bon garçon.

Jerry never takes his eyes off the bus.

4-B INT. BUS - DAY

The bus is now empty, except for Harvey, and the driver pulls over to the side of the street, parks the bus, and turns around.

DRIVER
(to Harvey)
Hey, you!

HARVEY
Huh?

DRIVER
Gotta get off or pay for the return trip. We're at the beach.

Harvey gets up and staggers up the aisle toward the driver.
CONTINUED

HARVEY
I'm supposed to meet somebody.
Gotta stay here till he gets here.

DRIVER
Don't make me throw you off.

Harvey looks at him for a moment, then gets off the bus.

CUT TO

EXT. OLD LIQUOR STORE - DAY

Seedy, in a run-down section of Venice, near the water. Over this shot, we hear:

VOICE
Jean va au restaurant. Il ouvre la porte et il entre.

Harvey Butler exits the liquor store and turns toward the beach, moving along the sidewalk. On this, we widen to show that this shot is through the windshield of Jerry Grimes' car. He is watching as the tape drones on.

VOICE
Il ferme la porte et il va au table.

He pulls the tape out of the cassette machine in the dash.

EXT. STREET - DAY

Harvey moves along the sidewalk carrying the brown paper bag with the bottle inside. The blue Jensen is tailing him some distance back. It moves like a dark blue shadow, a shark in shallow water.

ANGLE - THE BEACH - DAY

Harvey walks across the sand and moves toward his spot under the Santa Monica pier. He sits down and looks at the surf rolling in. We move in on him to a tight closeup. He takes a swig on the bottle and then looks again out to the sea.

NEW ANGLE - HARVEY - DAY

A garish necktie slips around his neck and is drawn tight.
The bottle drops from his hand and he claws for the tie around his neck. We can now see that it is Jerry holding the tie. Jerry talks softly to him, almost like someone who is soothing a pet. In strange contrast to the scene is the almost pathetic tone to it, almost a love tone.

JERRY
(softly)
Easy, Mr. Butler...Just relax...
That's right...Easy now...You're doing fine....

When he finishes, he releases the tie and Harvey Butler slumps over on the sand, dead.

JERRY is still talking softly to the body as he goes through the pockets of Butler's old coat, turning them inside out. He goes through the rest of the body, turning the pockets inside out and ripping one open. He goes to the foot of the body and unlaces Butler's shoes, takes them off, and then moves slowly away from the body. Hold on the bug-eyed corpse of Harvey Butler as the sound of the surf continues and we

18 EXT. POLICE STATION - DAY

This is the University Division Police Station. University Division is old and the second busiest division in Los Angeles; the only area with a larger crime problem is 77th Division (Watts).

19 INT. WATCH COMMANDER'S OFFICE - DAY

This is a small corner office. It is neat and orderly and there is a sign on a battered wooden desk. It reads: Captain Harry Dell -- Homicide. We are on the sign as we hear an argument in progress.

DETECTIVE BECKER'S VOICE
Some of these cases are still possibles. I don't get enough time to even talk to all the people listed on the A.R. reports.

CONTINUED
CAPTAIN DELL

Look, I don't like it any more than you do, but we can't screw around on dead-enders.

As this is going on, we pull back and show Captain Harry Dell. He is a big man in his mid-thirties, who is physically impressive. Despite a rather rough-hewn quality, he is dressed in an immaculately pressed dark suit. The man opposite him is Detective Dennis Becker. He's in his shirt-sleeves and there is a service revolver riding high on his hip. Becker is balding, in his late forties, and a little over-weight. He looks more like an accountant than a cop. Right now he's angry.

CAPTAIN DELL

(softer)
Look, Dennis, you got something warm, I'll let you keep it, but you can't poach around on cases where we know going in we got nothing...

(a beat)
You gotta pull with me. I got an efficiency graph that looks like the ass-end of a VW, and we got a city full of crazies out there who act like every night is Halloween.

DETECTIVE BECKER

Okay, okay.

Dell is looking at a sheaf of papers that are in a manila file on his desk.

CAPTAIN DELL

How 'bout this prosti, Janet Nicolas....

(a beat)
You got anything good on that one?

DETECTIVE BECKER

We thought the pimp looked good for it but he's got an alibi that won't quit.

(a beat)
Probably a trick.

CAPTAIN DELL

Okay, dump it.

(a beat)
How 'bout this wino they found under the pier -- Butler? What's with him?
CONTINUED - 2

DETECTIVE BECKER
I don't know... It looks like a mugging, except for one thing...
(a beat)
Left a pretty good bauble on his finger -- a wedding ring with a half-karat stone. We had it appraised at two hundred bucks.

CAPTAIN DELL
Some diamond... Probably wouldn't scratch glass.

DETECTIVE BECKER
Still, I got a hunch there's more behind it than just a mugging.
(a beat)
I'd like to hold onto it for a couple more days.

CAPTAIN DELL
You got anything solid?

DETECTIVE BECKER
Just a feeling.

CAPTAIN DELL
You know what's wrong with this system... We got a job to do here that can't be done -- and we don't want to admit it to ourselves... So we tell each other we got hunches which is great in detective novels, but which you and I both know ain't worth a trip to the bathroom.

DETECTIVE BECKER
I still think ---

CAPTAIN DELL
(overlapping)
I feel the same way, but we're crapping it off 'cause we ain't got time for it.
(a beat)
Dump it.

DETECTIVE BECKER
I still think ---

CAPTAIN DELL
Dump it!

SMASH CUT TO
as we watch, a manila folder is shoved into the drawer. In close to:

Typed on the tab, it says: Homicide -- Harvey Butler.

The drawer is slammed shut, and we pan down to the card taped to the front of the drawer. It reads: Unsolved - Inactive and a date. Hold on this for a long beat and begin the Main Titles for

"THE ROCKFORD FILES"

Credits continue over the following sequence.

CUT TO

INT. SARA'S BIKINI SHOP - TIGHT SHOT - TELEPHONE BOOK - YELLOW PAGES - DAY

Angle favors a small blocked ad. It shows a picture of a man's face, which appears to be handsome and friendly, but the ink is on too thick and it's hard to be sure. The copy under the small ad reads: The Rockford Agency -- Our Trained Investigators Have Specialized in Closed Cases Since 1954. Underneath, it says: Criminal, Only. 24-hour Service. Licensed and Bonded. Below that, there is an address: 2354 Madison Blvd., Los Angeles. Pull back slightly to show that the Rockford ad is by far the smallest ad on the page; it is surrounded by half-page ads from large detective agencies.

As a woman's hand scribbles the address on the pad. We pan up and find:

She is about twenty-five and blonde. Her hair hangs simply down to her shoulders. She is pretty but not striking, the kind of girl who's beauty requires a second look to fully appreciate. She closes the phone book and as it thumps shut, we
EXT. OCEAN BOULEVARD - RUNBY - DAY

as a six-year old convertible with the top down cruises down the street. Behind the wheel is Sara Butler. She is looking for the address.

HER POINT OF VIEW

The shot scans a typical stretch of beach around Los Angeles; the buildings are two and three stories. There are a few vacant lots. A small house trailer is parked on one of the lots near the ocean.

RESUME - SARA BUTLER

She re-checks the address on the pad in front of her as she passes the house trailer and continues along.

EXT. BEACH - DAY

Two figures are walking along the beach. One of them is very big and in his mid to late thirties. His name is Tom Rockford. He has the looks that go with a professional athlete, and moves with an athlete's grace. Moving along beside him, talking with animated movements, is his father, Joseph Rockford. ("Rocky") He is sixty-eight, grey hair, and in very good shape. They move along the beach, both carrying fishing rods.

JOSEPH

Whatta ya mean ya can't come? You told me you could come. I set it up with Mort...He got the cabin all stocked with Scotch. Jesus, son, we could really have us a hoot.

(a beat)

Whatta ya got that's so important ya can't go fishing with your old man? I ain't been a good father or something?

ROCKFORD

Come on, Rocky, don't get personal.

JOSEPH

Personal, hell. I went to a lot of trouble to set this up.

CONTINUED
ROCKFORD
I'd like to go, dad, but you shoulda called me. This just isn't the time.

JOSEPH
Ain't gonna cost you nothing.

ROCKFORD
That's not the point.

JOSEPH
Like hell it ain't.

ROCKFORD
I can't go. It's business.

JOSEPH
You're broke, right? You shoulda took over my rig, Tommy. You woulda made a hell of a good trucker. But no. You gotta be Sam Spade or something.

Rockford has a beach towel in his hand. He slings it at his father, who ducks.

ROCKFORD
You're a vicious old coot.

CUT TO

EXT. VACANT LOT - WITH TRAILER

as Sara Butler, now coming from the other direction, slows and then, after a beat, hesitantly pulls her car into the vacant lot and parks beside the trailer. She re-checks the address on the pad.

HER POINT OF VIEW - THE TRAILER

There is a number stuck on the side of the trailer which corresponds to the address on the pad.

RESUME - SARA BUTLER

After a moment, she gets out of the car and approaches the trailer, tries the door, it's locked.
EXT. BEACH - NEAR TRAILER - ROCKFORD AND JOSEPH

JOSEPH
Come on, Tom. Two days. Get ya outta the smog. Clean air in your lungs. Trout over an open fire...
(a beat)
Ain't nobody gonna want you to stick your nose in their business for 'em while we're gone.

ROCKFORD
Yeah?

They look up and see Sara by the trailer.

JOSEPH
Ten bucks says it's a bill collector.

ROCKFORD
Make it twenty plus welching privileges.

JOSEPH
You're on.

They move toward Sara.

ROCKFORD
Yes?

SARA (hesitantly)
Are you Thomas Rockford?

ROCKFORD
Yes.

SARA
My name is Sara Butler. I want to talk to you.

ROCKFORD
Sure. Come in.

He shakes her hand and unlocks the door.

JOSEPH
I'll bet you're the Miss Butler from the bank, right?

SARA
I beg your pardon.

Rockford opens the door and they enter.
INT. PANELED OFFICE - DAY

This is a small office which has been magnificently furnished in antiques: an ivory-white carpet, leather sofas with an antique coffee table, and there are several abstract paintings. There are no windows in the office. At the end of the room is an antique desk accompanied by a red leather swivel chair. Although quite small, it is a very plush setting. There is a bank of phones on a built-in console beside the desk, also a short-wave radio setup. All have been custom built into the console. As we pan the office, we come to rest on Joseph Rockford.

ROCKFORD
This is my father, Joseph Rockford.

SARA
How do you do.

Joseph shakes hands with her. She looks around the trailer and the plushness of it seems to relax her.

SARA
This is....

ROCKFORD Different?

SARA Yes.

ROCKFORD
It's also cheap, tax deductible, earthquake proof, and when I get a case out of town, I take it with me.

JOSEPH
(also to Sara)
It's in hook up to its running lights.

SARA
(a beat)
I need the services of a private detective.

Joseph Rockford gives an audible sigh. He crosses to the door.

JOSEPH
I'll be seeing you, son.

(a beat)
I'll be at Mort's cabin. You got the number.

CONTINUED
Rockford snaps his fingers and Joseph Rockford stops, then resignedly takes out his wallet and fishes out a bill and hands it to Rockford.

JOSEPH
Don't forget the welching privileges.

ROCKFORD
I won't.

Joseph Rockford exits the trailer and Sara turns to Tom.

SARA
Welching privileges?

ROCKFORD
He lost a bet but I gave him the right to take me out to dinner and renegotiate the loss.
(a beat)
He'll get me drunk and settle for five bucks.

SARA
Oh....

Rockford crosses to the desk and sits down, motioning Sara to a chair. She looks at him for a long moment. She looks shy, almost frightened.

SARA
I want to retain you, Mr. Rockford. I need help.

ROCKFORD
That's fine.
(a beat)
I hope you can afford me.

Sara looks at Rockford as if she can't quite understand the question. Finally she looks at him with a little bit of anger.

SARA
I'm sorry... What?
ROCKFORD
I like to get the business out of the way up front.
(a beat)
I don't want to shock you, Miss Butler, but I'm not in this business for adventure.
(a beat)
I'm in it to make a living.

SARA
But you haven't even heard what I want?

Rockford looks at her for a long moment, then nods his head.

ROCKFORD
You're right, but if we could just talk about my fee first we will probably save a lot of time.

SARA (upset)
I don't think until you hear what I want you to do you could possibly....

ROCKFORD
(overlapping)
Excuse me, Miss Butler, but I cost two hundred dollars a day, plus expenses.

Sara looks shocked.

SARA
Two hundred dollars!?

ROCKFORD
Plus expenses.
(a beat)
And I only handle criminal cases that are closed.
(off her look)
It's not like it is on T.V.
(a beat)
I get myself messed up in an L.A.P.D. active file and I get my can shot off, my license pulled, and probably get booked for obstructing justice.

CONTINUED
SARA
I thought private investigators got involved in police cases all the time.

ROCKFORD
Y'know what most of my colleagues do for a living, Miss Butler?

She shakes her head.

ROCKFORD
They hang out in cheap hotel room closets with telephoto lenses...
(a beat)
You can hire a guy like that for fifty a day and he'll probably throw in an extra set of prints.

Sara looks at Rockford for a moment and we can almost see her drop the shy little girl act.

SARA
(stiff)
Where did you get this wonderful finishing school approach, Mr. Rockford?

ROCKFORD
People come to me all the time...
Sit right there where you're sitting and cry their eyes out...
Old women who want their sons out of jail...Girlfriends...Fathers...
All of them with problems...
(a beat)
I used to be a softie and listen and then we'd get around to the money and they couldn't pay the freight, so they left and I'd be all depressed and that was that. It was turning me off on my business, so now I do it this way.

Sara is now a little tight-lipped. She looks at Rockford as if she is about to get up and leave. Instead, she opens her purse and pulls out her checkbook.

CONTINUED
SARA
Two hundred dollars. That's the price, is it? Well, that's fine.
(a beat)
Money doesn't happen to be my problem. I have enough money to hire a platoon of little people like you.

As she is saying this, she is scribbling out the check. She misspells his name. Rockford is looking across the desk at her work.

ROCKFORD
It's Rockford with a k.

She doesn't make the correction. She rips the check off and flips it across the desk at him.

SARA
May I assume I have your attention now?

ROCKFORD
What is it I can do for you, Miss Butler?

She looks at him and shakes her head in mild disbelief, as Rockford picks up the check, examines it, and puts it back down on the desk.

SARA
My father was murdered. The police don't think it was very important. Just a skid row killing. They think my father was killed by another wino.

ROCKFORD
Skid Row?

There is a long moment, then Sara speaks the next sentence almost as a challenge.

SARA
My father was a wino.

She looks at Rockford but he says nothing, so she goes on:

CONTINUED
SARA
Two years ago my mother died...
After she died, it seemed to be over for him...
(a beat)
I don't understand why it happened really, but he seemed to stop caring. I tried to make him forget, but he started drinking and ended up a bum...
(a beat)
Two months ago somebody killed him.
Nobody seems to care who did it but me.

There is a long moment and Rockford looks at Sara closely.

ROCKFORD
The cops aren't on it?

SARA
Not anymore. Detective Becker was working on it... He wanted to keep trying but they closed the case. He recommended I come to you.

ROCKFORD
Y'know, Miss Butler, if the L.A.P.D. homicide dicks can't solve it, there's a pretty good chance I can't either.

SARA
I just found out something that
I think changes it.

ROCKFORD
Did you tell the police?

SARA
Yes. They still don't think there's anything they can do.

ROCKFORD
What is it?

SARA
Before I tell you, I want you to meet my brother.

Rockford looks at Sara for a long moment.
ROCKFORD
Will you wait for me outside...I have to make a phone call.

SARA
Then you'll take the case?

ROCKFORD
Let's talk to your brother, then I'll let you know. I'll be right out.

Sara is on her feet. She moves out of the trailer and closes the door. Rockford picks up the phone and dials a number, then he picks up the check on his desk.

ROCKFORD
(into phone)
I'd like to run a credit check on a Miss Sara Butler, 2378 Addison Street, Los Angeles...
(a beat)
Yeah, this is Tom Rockford.

CUT TO

INT. DRUG STORE - STOCK ROOM - TIGHT SHOT - NICK BUTLER - DAY

He is nineteen years old and is as unattractive as nineteen-year-old boys come. His hair is already receding, he has pimples and wears horn-rimmed glasses; his expression is an almost constant scowl. He is glaring at someone.

NICK
That's dumb, Sara, really dumb. I don't wanta talk to you, Mister, so you and my sister can just take a hike.

Pull back to show that we are in the stock room of a drugstore.
Pharmaceuticals are lying around in opened cartons. Nick Butler is dressed in a white coat of a drugstore employee.
Sara and Tom Rockford are standing opposite him.

NICK
Who let you back here, anyway? If Mr. Tigoshi finds you back here, he'll throw you out.
I'll risk it.

NICK
Listen, Mister, I'm not talking to anybody about my father.
(to Sara)
Why don't you leave it alone, Sara? What'd he ever do for us except come around asking for money so he could souse up on cheap wine? Somebody killed him...Okay, that's too bad....

Sara steps forward and slaps Nick across the face. He makes a move toward her but Rockford intervenes.

NICK
You can't be Mother, Sara. It won't work. I should think you would know that now.

SARA
Can't you have some sympathy?

NICK
He treated you like a Queen... bought you presents...told you how pretty you were...I got to carry his golf bag on Saturday and empty out the garbage.
(a beat)
You go ahead and have sympathy, Sara, but sympathy is an emotion that's counterproductive.

SARA
Would you rather I took Mr. Rockford up to talk to your Mrs. Elias?

This stops Nick for a minute.

NICK
(weighing it)
You wouldn't.

SARA
Come on, Mr. Rockford. I want you to meet someone.

She starts to take Rockford out of the stock room when Nick stops them by moving to block their exit.
NICK
Sara...you can't do this.

SARA Watch me.

Nick finally nods his head.

NICK (surly)
You're a cop, huh?

ROCKFORD
What I am, Sonny, is about fifty pounds heavier than you and one hell of a lot meaner. So you better soften up your approach or get ready to kiss the deck. I don't think I like you.

Nick looks at Rockford for a long moment. He's intimidated.

NICK
Okay, okay.
(to Sara)
But you better not bother Mrs. Elias.
(a beat)
You promise?

SARA
I promise.

Nick looks around as if someone might be listening, then turns to Rockford.

NICK
It's not all that important. Sara thinks it's a big deal but it's not important.

ROCKFORD
Tell me about it anyway.

NICK
This lady, who I make deliveries to, got kind of interested in me. She learned about my mother dying and my father getting killed and she found out that I wanted to be a doctor...That's all.

CONTINUED
SARA
That's not all, Nick. Tell him everything.

NICK
She offered to send me to Medical School.

Rockford looks over at Sara who is mildly triumphant, having forced this from her obnoxious brother.

ROCKFORD
That's all?

NICK
I told you it wasn't much.

SARA
Tell the rest of it.

NICK
It's not important. You're making a big deal outta nothing.

SARA (firm)
Tell him, Nick.

NICK
She orders her pharmaceuticals from this drug store and she has them delivered to her house in Bel Air.

SARA
(to Rockford)
You see?

ROCKFORD
No.

SARA
Why would she deal with this drug store? It's halfway across town. There are fifteen or twenty that are closer.

NICK
She just does. Look, Sara, don't ruin this for me. How many times does a guy get a chance to be put through medical school? Don't mess it up. Please....

The medical profession could use more sweet guys like you.

CUT TO

EXT. COFFEE PATIO - SUNSET BOULEVARD - DAY

Sara is sitting under a colorful awning drinking coffee. Rockford is at a phone by the hostess stand. He hangs up and moves over to Sara and sits down. He looks at her for a long moment, then picks up his coffee and sips it. He says nothing.

SARA

What's wrong?

ROCKFORD

I was just beginning to like you....

SARA

(bright)

I like you, too.

ROCKFORD

While we were out slapping your brother around, I had some people run a credit check on you....You know what I found out?

SARA

(fearing the worst)

What?

He looks up at her, then drops her check down on the table in front of her.

ROCKFORD

You laid some bad paper on me. People who like one another almost never do that sort of thing....

Sara reaches for her purse, opens it, and takes out her checkbook, looks at it, and then shakes her head in self-disgust.

SARA

Oh...How stupid of me! That's my grocery account. I wrote it on the wrong bank. I'm sorry....

CONTINUED

ROCKFORD
Knock it off, Sara. According to these guys, you're the only person in town with worse credit than me.

SARA
What are you going to do?

ROCKFORD
I don't know.

Sara hesitates, then changes her approach.

SARA
I had to do it.
(a beat)
This is important to me. He was my father. Somebody killed him. They choked him with a necktie, they took his shoes and left him on the beach. Dammit, they're not gonna get away with it. Not if I have anything to say about it.

She looks at Tom Rockford for a long moment. He is sipping his coffee. She relaxes a little bit, some of the tension going out of her.

SARA
I'm sorry about the check but nobody would listen to me. I needed somebody to listen.
(a beat)
Will you take the case, Mr. Rockford? Please.
(a beat)
Don't you see how strange it is? Why would she buy from that pharmacy...? It doesn't make sense.

ROCKFORD
Okay, but what does it have to do with your father's death?

SARA
I don't know, but it's unusual, isn't it? Admit it.

ROCKFORD
Okay, it's unusual, but not that unusual.
SARA
Now that you've met Nick, how many women do you think would be interested in sending him to Medical School?

This also stops Rockford. He thinks about it for a long moment.

ROCKFORD
Well, we haven't seen Mrs. Elias. She may look like she got dredged up out of the L.A. river.

SARA
Nick says Mrs. Elias is very attractive.

ROCKFORD
Okay, Miss Butler. Let's say that doesn't track either, but it still isn't evidence that anybody could move on.

SARA
But it's strange, isn't it? Admit it.

ROCKFORD
Okay, it's strange -- but it's not that strange.

SARA
Even Nick thought it was odd when it first happened... But now he just wants to protect that scholarship.

There is a long beat, then:

SARA
Will you take the case?

Rockford looks at her for a long moment.

ROCKFORD
I don't know.

SARA
What is it with you? Are you independently wealthy, or on some kind of big case or something?
ROCKFORD
What do you do for a living when you're not writing bad checks?

SARA
I have a small bikini shop. I make everything myself.

ROCKFORD
How much do you make?

SARA
About two hundred a week after expenses.

ROCKFORD
So you can't really afford me.

SARA No.

ROCKFORD
If I don't think there's much chance of solving this case and I still go ahead and take everything you make in two weeks for one day of my time, what does that make me?

SARA
I don't think that has anything to do with it.

ROCKFORD
Well, I think it makes me an unprincipled jerk and since I haven't got any real close friends, I have to get along with myself, so I don't take cases where I think I'm wasting my time or your money...
That is, if you had any.

Sara looks at Rockford for a long moment.

SARA
What are you doing for dinner tonight?

ROCKFORD
Huh?
CONTINUED - 4

SARA
I know a place out in the valley... Candlelight dining, a flamenco guitarist... Very informal. If you're free, I could make some reservations for us... It's lovely there... You can ---

ROCKFORD

Sara.

SARA What?

ROCKFORD
Knock it off, will you?

She looks at him for a long moment, then:

ROCKFORD
(continuing)
I'll spend three hours on it, just for fun. No charge. Then if it looks like it's gonna develop and if you can come up with two hundred bucks a day, I'll take it on.

SARA
Good.

Rockford picks up the check from the table and hands it to her.

ROCKFORD
Don't drop it. It'll bounce up and hit you under the chin.

SARA
Funny. Very funny.

She's smiling when she says it.

INT. ANGEL MARTIN'S OFFICE - DAY

"Angel" is a monicker hung on Alvin Martin. When we see Alvin Martin, we can guess why. He looks about as sinister as a man can look. He is seated behind a large battered desk looking at Tom Rockford, who is seated across from him. There is a sign on the desk which has Alvin Martin printed in white letters.

ANGEL
I don't know, Tom... How do ya figure it? If I didn't have to keep this crummy job, I'd quit.

ROCKFORD
So quit.

ANGEL
You don't know what it's like being on parole.
(a beat)
You got sprung by the Governor.
But me? I gotta check in once a week with some fish called Norman Carter and I got to tell him how it's going.
(a beat)
If my brother-in-law didn't own this paper, I probably wouldn't ever got out of prison.
(a beat)
No, I'm stuck, baby. Stuck.

ROCKFORD
Sorry to hear it, Angel.

ANGEL
It's okay. I guess I got it coming.
(a beat)
I did that bank.

ROCKFORD
Yeah. When we were in, you musta told me a hundred times you were innocent.

ANGEL
Yeah. Well, I wasn't.
(a beat)
How 'bout you?

ROCKFORD
Huh?

ANGEL
You really do it?

ROCKFORD
No, I was bad-rapped.
CONTINUED - 2

ANGEL
Sure, sure...
(a beat)
Look, I told you. Come on, give it to me straight. You were in that robbery, right?

ROCKFORD Wrong.

Angel looks at Rockford for a long moment.

ANGEL
I don't believe you.

ROCKFORD
Nobody ever did.
(a grin)
Look, did you get what I wanted?

ANGEL
Yeah. I went back through the old society columns and I pulled up something on this Elias twitch...
(a beat)
Take a look.

He hands Rockford a news clipping and Rockford scans it for a long moment.

ANGEL
Some coincidence, huh?

ROCKFORD
Yeah...Sure is....

There is a long beat.

ROCKFORD
When did her husband die? What was the date?

ANGEL
It was in June of last year. It's there on the second page.

Rockford flips the clipping to the second page and then looks back at Angel.

ROCKFORD
Thanks, Angel.
(a beat)
I'll see you later. We'll have dinner.

CONTINUED - 3

ANGEL
I can't... It's a condition of parole. I can't hang out with anybody I did time with.

Rockford nods.

ROCKFORD
Well, when you get off then.

He heads to the door. At the door, Angel puts his hand on Rockford's arm.

ANGEL
Hey, Tommy...
(a beat)
Come on, just between us. You were dirty, right? You did it?

ROCKFORD No.

ANGEL
I won't tell. What the hell, I just wanna know.

ROCKFORD
No. I never pulled the job.

ANGEL
(a long beat)
Okay, you wanna be that way, I never did the bank either.

ROCKFORD
I never thought you did.

ANGEL
Well, I didn't.

ROCKFORD
I'll see ya, Angel.

He grins at the ugly little man who finally returns the grin and, if anything, it makes him even uglier.

EXT. POLICE STATION - DAY - N.P.S.

The same establishing shot as before.
INT. HOMICIDE DIVISION - ANGLE ON DET. BECKER AND ROCKFORD

They are moving through the squad room.

BECKER
Yeah, it's closed. I thought it was a mistake but we're getting a homicide a night down here and I just have to center my time on the ones that look solvable.

ROCKFORD
Let me have a look at the file, will ya?

BECKER
I can't, Tom. You know that.

(a beat)
I can't even tell you about it. Let's face it, every time you get lucky and solve a dead case, you make us look stupid. My captain hates you.

ROCKFORD
But if you were going to tell me, what would you say?

BECKER
I'd probably tell you that there was a two hundred dollar diamond on his finger and that for my money that, doesn't shake out as a robbery.

ROCKFORD
I see...

(a beat)
Okay, Dennis, I'm gonna poke around, I think.

BECKER
You get anything solid, I want to hear about it.

ROCKFORD Right.

(a beat) Thanks.

CUT TO
INT. RESTAURANT - NIGHT

Rockford and Sara are standing in the entryway. She is dressed in a simple black dress, with a string of pearls. Sara looks at Rockford, who is in a sport coat with no tie. After a moment, the Maitre'd comes up to him and shows him a selection of three of four ties. Rockford finally selects one and starts putting it on.

ROCKFORD
(putting on tie)
I thought this place was informal.

Sara smiles.

ROCKFORD
What's so funny?

SARA
Nothing.

The Maitre'd motions the way and Rockford and Sara follow. They are no sooner seated when Sara starts up.

SARA
(a beat)
Well?

ROCKFORD
Well, what?

SARA
Are you going to take the case or not?

ROCKFORD
How are you going to pay for it?

SARA
I thought maybe we could work out a deal.

ROCKFORD
I'm sorry, but I don't have specials anymore.
(a beat)
It's gotta be two hundred a day, plus expenses.

SARA
Why is it so expensive?

CONTINUED
ROCKFORD
It's not expensive. It's just a little less than a good plumber will make if he doesn't work on weekends.
(a beat)
Besides, it's dangerous. There's a strange thing about unsolved cases...There is usually somebody in the shadows who doesn't want them re-opened. You'd be surprised how nasty they can get.

SARA
What if I could pay you on the installment plan?

ROCKFORD
I did that once and got stiffed. Ended up in Small Claims Court to get the balance.

SARA
I'm trying to hire you but I guess you just don't want to work for me.

ROCKFORD
You're not trying to hire me, you're trying to chisel me down.
(a beat)
How big an installment?

SARA (quick)
Twenty-five dollars a week.

ROCKFORD
Is that all?

SARA
I'll pay you, Mr. Rockford. I promise.

ROCKFORD
That means if I work for one day, you owe me twenty-five dollars a week for eight weeks.
(a beat)
You sure that's what you want to do?

She nods.

CONTINUED
(a long beat)
Okay, I'll take it.

She smiles and reaches across the table and shakes his hand.

SARA
Tell me what made you decide?

ROCKFORD
I looked into Mrs. Elias's background and I came up with a strange coincidence...

(a beat)
Three years ago, she was a dancer here in L.A., did a lot of TV variety shows...

SARA
What's the coincidence?

ROCKFORD
The coincidence is that she married a guy named William Elias...Elias was sixty-eight years old and looked like he'd been emptied out of a vacuum cleaner. But he had ten million dollars. Mildred Elias, then known as Mildred Mills, married him in Las Vegas and, on their wedding night, he croaked... She is now Mrs. Mildred Elias and is filthy with money.

SARA
But how does that tie in with my father's death?

ROCKFORD
It doesn't. It didn't even happen within ten months of when your father was killed, but it's still a funny coincidence...And Nick's Medical School offer is kind of strange and I don't believe in coincidences happening on top of one another, so I'll look into it for a day or so.

Sara looks at him for a long moment.

SARA
Thank you, Mr. Rockford.

SARA Tom.

There is a long beat, then Sara looks at him with a critical eye.

ROCKFORD
What is it?

SARA
I like you in a tie.

ROCKFORD
That makes you and my mother, rest her soul.

SARA
And nobody else?

ROCKFORD
I don't think anybody else really gives a damn.

Sara smiles and we

He is balding, pudgy, and looks like he's constantly in a sweat. Pull back to show Rockford.

DR. SEELMAN

Yes, I was the coroner who did the autopsy on Mr. Elias.

(a beat)
We had four separate autopsies... They were performed by private physicians...

(a beat)
I don't mind telling you his widow, Mrs. Elias, was really treated rather badly by the authorities... They felt she killed him because of the amount of money involved and because she was thirty years younger...and because of the coincidence of the fact that he died on their wedding night.

ROCKFORD

That all sounds pretty reasonable.

DR. SEELMAN

Well, maybe, but you should have seen his respiratory system... (a beat) His arteries were hard enough to pound through two inches of concrete...

ROCKFORD

There's no way it could have been induced by electric shock or drugs or something?

DR. SEELMAN

No. As I said, Mr. Rockford, Mr. Elias had a cousin who was trying to cut himself into the will...He had four different doctors examine the body after I did...They all came up with the same answer: Mr. Elias died of a very natural and inevitable heart attack. He'd been at a wedding party and he ate too much and drank too much...and he couldn't take it.
CONTINUED

ROCKFORD
Okay, thank you.

DR. SEELMAN
Are you trying to re-open the case, Mr. Rockford?
(a beat)
Because if you are and you're interested in a medical opinion, I think you're wasting your time.

Hold on Rockford for a moment, then:

ROCKFORD
Thank you for seeing me, Doctor.

Rockford turns and exits the office. As soon as he does, Dr. Seelman opens a phone directory on his desk, then dials a 213 area code and a number. There is a long beat, and then:

DR. SEELMAN

I don't know whether you remember me but this is Dr. Seelman....

She is a woman of extremely generous proportions. She is not pretty, but there is a sultriness and sexiness that carries the feeling of great beauty where it really doesn't exist. She has the lithe look of a dancer; she is dressed conservatively as she stands in a magnificent living room, the telephone to her ear. Intercut:

MILDRED
Yes, I remember, Doctor. You did the autopsy on William.

DR. SEELMAN
I didn't want to bother you, but there is a man up here who seems very interested in the coroner's report that I filed.

MILDRED
How strange....

CONTINUED
DR. SEELMAN
I think he's going to try and reopen the case in some way...
(an awkward pause)
I felt so badly about the way you were treated when he died...There was no question he died a natural death.
(a beat)
I just thought I would tell you so if you had some way of stopping this man, you could do it.

MILDRED
Thank you, Doctor.
(a beat)
You wouldn't happen to have his name?

DR. SEELMAN
(embarrassed)
Of course...I have his card.
(reads card)
Tom Rockford. It says he's a private investigator who specializes in closed cases...There's no address on the card.

MILDRED
Thank you, Doctor.

DR. SEELMAN
(he hesitates for a moment)
Ah...Mrs. Elias, if you ever get up to Las Vegas, I hope we might see each other...I....

MILDRED
Of course, Doctor Seelman. I still have your number...Let's make a date and plan on it...
(a beat)
Could I call you back later?

DR. SEELMAN
Of course. Sure, I'm here all the people die in this town...I hardly ever leave the office...If you just call me here at the office, I'll probably be here.

MILDRED
Good.

ANGLE - ON ROCKFORD

He is standing by the door. Rockford doesn't say anything for a beat.

SARA
Don't tell me you're off the case again?

Rockford nods.

SARA
But why?

ROCKFORD
I just got back from Vegas... According to the coroner who did the autopsy, Mr. Elias died of a heart attack. He said it was legit...no possibility it was induced.

SARA
If there was some kind of connection between Mr. Elias and my father, maybe he's lying....

ROCKFORD Why?

SARA
Maybe she paid him....

ROCKFORD
You want my opinion: It's a dead-end.

Rockford takes a slip of paper out of his pocket and slides it over to Sara.

ROCKFORD
I didn't charge you for the time... ten hours driving to Vegas and back...
ROCKFORD (Cont'd)
I just put in seven cents a mile and gas and the time I spent working on it up there and the two phone calls here...

(a beat)
It comes to seventy-five dollars.
I'll give you a receipt. It's tax deductible.

Sara looks at the slip of paper and makes no move to pick it

ROCKFORD
My own kind.

Look, Sara, I'm sorry...I know you want to find out who killed your father but if you want the advice

Even if you find out who did it, your father will still be dead and you won't feel any better about it.

Believe me....

SARA
(exploding)
You don't know anything about it!
You stand there with your seven cents and tell me about my father. I'm going to find out who killed him.

ROCKFORD
It was nice knowing you, Sara.

I think you should bury your father

He gets up and walks out of the shop, as we move in and hold

She sets down the receiver. Intercut as Rockford turns to the back of the phone book to the yellow pages. He looks for his own ad.
On the picture of him somebody has put a mustache. He takes a pencil with an eraser out of his pocket and starts to erase the mustache, as we:

SARA

Yes? What is it?

ROCKFORD

I been thinking there's still one other thing I could check out....

SARA

What's wrong, Tom? Did you just figure out you're overdrawn at the bank?

ROCKFORD

You don't have to get smart.

SARA

I don't see why not...After all, you're a pretty hard man with a buck.

ROCKFORD

You want me to stay on this for a while or not?

SARA

Depends.

(a beat)

Whatta you going to do?

ROCKFORD

I might just try to run a bluff with Mrs. Elias.

SARA

Okay. If you want to, it's okay with me.

(a beat)

Tom, don't hurt Nick's chances for Medical School.
He has erased it too hard and the paper tears.

Dammit!

Intercut:

ROCKFORD

If you could just look at some of the admitting forms for just a moment, Mrs. Elias, I think what I'm saying would make a little more sense.

Mrs. Elias takes the sun guards off her nose and sits up for a moment. She is truly breathtaking in a bathing suit, especially this one. She looks at Rockford.

MILDRED

You don't look much like a Dean of Admissions....

63-A ANGLE - ROCKFORD
He hesitates for a moment, then takes off his glasses and looks a little disappointed.

ROCKFORD
Oh...
(a beat)
Well, I'm not.
(a beat)
Actually, being a Dean of Admissions is really quite a challenge. Do you know that at Mollar we have over twelve hundred applicants for every opening?

MILDRED
Twelve hundred? What a job that must be screening them out. I had no idea...

ROCKFORD
Well, of course, many of those are multiple applications.

She looks at him with a questioning look and Rockford picks it up.

ROCKFORD
That means they're applications from people who are also applying to other Medical Schools, so it's not as bad as it sounds. But, nonetheless, we don't want to accept anyone unless we're sure he's going to be able to continue in the school.

It is for Mollar Medical School. We move in on the name of the Assistant Dean -- Carter Simpson.

63-G  RESUME - MILDRED, ROCKFORD - DAY

ROCKFORD
It says that you are the one who is going to pay for Nicholas' education at Mollar. Since you are not related to Nicholas Butler, we just wanted to make sure that you are willing to pay for the whole four years...

(a beat)
What we're really trying to determine is how serious your interest in him really is....

Mildred cocks an eyebrow at the remark.

ROCKFORD
That didn't come out the way I wanted...

MILDRED
Nick Butler delivers drugs from the Pharmacy. He's a bright young man whose father and mother are both dead...I'm very wealthy and I couldn't possibly spend everything I have, so I've decided to do this boy a favor.

(a beat)
Does that answer your question?

ROCKFORD
Well...almost. There's one other thing...

(a beat)
The school was wondering if you could set up some kind of trust to guarantee his education for four years...

(a beat)
Believe me, it's not that we don't trust your word, it's just that we must have certain guarantees...

(a beat)
After all, it will probably come to fifteen thousand dollars a year.

Mildred reaches out and takes a pencil off the table and writes something on the letterhead, then hands it back to Rockford.

MILDRED
That's my attorney's number...Call him and he'll make the arrangements.

ROCKFORD
Wonderful. Thank you.

Rockford looks at her for a long moment, then clears his throat.

ROCKFORD
Boy, that pool looks nice....

MILDRED
It is.

ROCKFORD
It's sure a hot day....

MILDRED
Good-bye, Dean Simpson. Call my attorney.
Good-bye.

He turns and gathers up his things and moves away from the pool area. Hold on Mildred Elias as she watches him go. After he has left, we hear a door close up by the house. Mildred looks in that direction.

as Jerry Grimes moves down toward the pool. She starts to get out of the chair as he approaches.

What the hell was he doing here?

 Aren't we a little beyond jealousies?

Grimes grabs her and pulls her upright.

You don't know who he was, do you?

His name is Simpson. He's --

His name is Rockford! He's the guy you asked me to follow!

On this, we pull back and find that Rockford and Sara are Rockford hands the slip of paper over to Sara, who looks at

SARA
What's this? The eight dollars and sixty-two cents?

ROCKFORD Tax.

SARA
Tax? There's no sales tax on a personal service.

ROCKFORD
Not sales tax -- federal tax. It's part of the fee, but I break it down separately for my own records.

SARA
Oh....

She looks at the paper for a long moment, then puts it down.

SARA
Who's paying for the tacos?

ROCKFORD Me.

SARA (sarcastic) Whoopee!

She picks up the taco and bites into it.

SARA
Well, I've got to tell you one thing: you've certainly been a

I even tried to get friendly with her but she wasn't buying.

SARA
Maybe your rates were to high?

ROCKFORD
Okay, if you want to be nasty....

SARA
I'm sorry.

There is a long moment, then:

SARA
Look, I have to get home. I'm dead tired.

ROCKFORD
Whatta you going to do about all this?

SARA
I'm not sure yet. I'm not even sure you're really off the case...
(a beat)
This is the third time you've quit and I'm still getting these little slips of paper from you.

ROCKFORD
I'm off it for good.

Sara reaches over and shakes his hand.

SARA
Okay...Well, thanks for trying.

She gets up and heads over to her car. Rockford watches her go.

It is visible behind another car, a half-block back.

RESUME - ROCKFORD
He now looks puzzled, then accelerates.

EXT. CITY STREET - RUNBY - NIGHT
First, Rockford pulls past camera, then makes a right-hand turn, followed several moments later by the blue Jensen.

INT. ROCKFORD'S CAR - NIGHT
Still driving, he reaches over and opens the glove compartment and takes out a packaged roll of nickels and drops them in his jacket pocket.

EXT. SMALL BAR - NIGHT
Rockford pulls into the parking lot, gets out, and strolls leisurely into the bar. There is a large sign out front that says "Entertainment, Drinks, Acrobatic Dancing." After a moment, Jerry Grimes pulls the blue Jensen into the parking lot and gets out. He moves quickly to the door.

INT. BAR - NIGHT
It is crowded and smokey and a red spotlight is playing over a girl who is obviously an acrobatic dancer. She is moving to the rhythm of the music, which is both exotic and contortive at the same time. Quite a combination.
71-D FOLLOWING JERRY - NIGHT
He looks around and finally spots Rockford at the end of the bar. Rockford is laughing and talking to the bartender. After a moment, he turns and heads toward the back of the night club.

71-E RESUME - JERRY
He watches as Rockford goes into the men's room.

71-F INT. MEN'S ROOM - NIGHT
Rockford looks around the room which is empty except for one man who is standing in front of the mirror carefully combing his hair. He gets it combed, looks dissatisfied, and repeats, starting to comb it again. Rockford looks at him impatiently.

71-G INT. BAR - JERRY GRIMES
He moves to a spot in the bar where he has a good look at the door to the men's room, then sits down and waits.

71-H INT. MEN'S ROOM - NIGHT
Rockford can't wait any longer, so he moves over to the man and taps him on the shoulder.

ROCKFORD
(a little slurred)
Excuse me, but I got me a real problem...I'd like to borrow twenty bucks...See, I'm with this girl....

The man quickly starts to finish combing his hair, then moves toward the door over the following:

ROCKFORD
(continuing)
...from the office...I figured I put enough booze in her and let her watch the acrobatic dancers, I'd make a score but I'm running outta dough... She's had ten scotch and sodas and she's drinking me under the table... You gimme your address and I promise to mail it to you....

As this is going on, the man splits out of the rest room.

71-L RESUME - JERRY

He looks at his watch again. The acrobatic dancer is just finishing her number and the audience applauds. Jerry gets up from the table and moves uncertainly toward the men's room, finally deciding to check it out. He opens the men's room door and enters.

71-M INT. MEN'S ROOM - NIGHT

Jerry steps through the door and sees Rockford leaning up against the far end of the wash room wall in a very relaxed position, his arms crossed. Jerry steps into the room and pretends to go to the wash basin.

ROCKFORD

You gotta be one of the dumbest-looking ape's I ever saw.

Grimes looks at him but says nothing.

ROCKFORD

I take guys like you apart just for fun.

Jerry is not used to being insulted. He reddens but continues to fiddle at the wash basin.

ROCKFORD

'Course, most of the time, big muscle-bound guys are compensating for feelings of inadequacy....

Jerry turns toward Rockford with an ugly snarl on his face.

JERRY

(tight) Meaning...?
ROCKFORD
	(smiling) Queer.

There is a long moment, then Jerry seems to change. His voice gets husky.

JERRY (whispering)
That's fine...That's just fine...
Take it easy....

Rockford continues to stand there with his arms crossed, seemingly relaxed. Jerry makes a sudden move forward and tries a kick, but he hits the soaped-up part of the floor. He loses his balance and misses Rockford, kicking the towel dispenser in half, demolishing it. As he struggles to regain it, Rockford steps forward and nails him with a classic right-cross. Jerry goes to his knees like a bag of cement. Rockford opens his fist and we see that in his right hand he is holding the roll of nickels. He drops the roll in his pocket, strips off his belt. Jerry is beginning to come to. He groans once.

NEW ANGLE - ROCKFORD AND JERRY

Rockford ties up Jerry's feet with the belt, drags him over to the stalls by the toilet, and hoists him up, so he is half hanging by his feet, half on his back, then Rockford kneels down and goes through his wallet, takes out his license and reads it.

CLOSE SHOT - LICENSE - NIGHT

It says that this is Jerold Grimes, six-three, 230.

RESUME - ROCKFORD

He slaps Jerry twice across the face with the wallet and his eyes come open. He is now fully conscious. He starts to move and realizes that he is immobile.

ROCKFORD
You know what's wrong with karate, Jerry? It's based on the ridiculous assumption that the other guy will fight fair.

JERRY
You're making a big mistake.
ROCKFORD
You better tell me what you're up to, Jerry, or I'm gonna leave you here for the weirdos that hang out in this joint.

JERRY
I come to the bathroom and you sucker-punch me. You gotta big problem, Mister....

ROCKFORD
(overlapping)
I saw you behind me yesterday, but I put it out of my mind because I absolutely refused to believe that anybody would try and tail me in a Jensen...

(a beat)
Then tonight I look in my rearview mirror and there you are again... chrome hubcaps, gold hood ornament and all...

(a beat)
So let's get that much straight. I know you been following me... What I don't know is why.

JERRY
Okay, so I been following you... I thought you were a guy who's been messing around with this chick I know. She asked me to scare him off. I can see now you're the wrong guy.

ROCKFORD
You're full a crap.

JERRY
Fine...You think I'm full of crap... Let me up.

ROCKFORD
Whatta you do for a living, Jerry?

JERRY Nothing.

ROCKFORD
There are all kinds of nothing... What's your flavor?
JERRY
I play the ponies.

ROCKFORD
(a beat)
Okay, Jerry, this is your last chance, then I'm gonna have to mark you up...Why are you following me?

JERRY
Help yourself, then you better get outta the country, 'cause I'm gonna find you and when I do, I'm gonna kick your butt up between your eyes.

Just as Rockford is about to reply, the door to the men's room opens and a balding man, about forty, enters. He looks at Rockford and at Jerry, who is hanging by his feet from the toilet stall.

MAN
Oh...I'm sorry. I didn't know the room was being used....

Rockford looks over at him and smiles.

ROCKFORD
It's okay, we're almost through.

MAN
Well, I'll wait outside....

ROCKFORD
It's okay. You can stay.

The man looks too frightened to move, so he stays there during the following:

ROCKFORD
Oh, yeah, one other thing, Jerry...
(a beat)
You might hear back from some people that there's a guy going through your background...Y'know, bank account and business associates...
(a beat)
If you hear that, don't worry too much about it, it'll just be me.
(a beat)
Have fun....

Rockford exits, as we
EXT. SMALL BAR - NIGHT

As we watch, Jerry Grimes exits the bar. He is mad as he moves to his car. He is carrying Rockford's belt in his right hand, then he slings it away, and gets into his car and pulls out of the parking lot. We pan it past and come to rest on Rockford's car parked up the street in the shadows with the lights out. He starts the engine and pulls out after Jerry Grimes.

Jerry Grimes pulls up in front of the bar and the doorman takes his car. Jerry enters. Across the street we can see Rockford's car pull up. He watches as Grimes enters the bar, then Rockford gets out of his car and crosses the street. He approaches the doorman.

ROCKFORD

Ah...excuse me....

The doorman looks at Rockford.

DOORMAN

Yes?

Rockford shows him his P.I. license.

ROCKFORD

That guy just went in -- the one with the blue Jensen?

DOORMAN

Yes...What about him?

ROCKFORD

Yeah...Well, I represent the Center City Finance Company...Mr. Grimes has skipped on his car payment...I have a valid warrant and all of the proper certification...Now I don't want to get you in the.

The doorman takes the number and looks at Rockford with an expression of shock.

DOORMAN
Mr. Grimes seems like such a nice

ROCKFORD
Don't they all?

Rockford peels off a ten and hands it to the doorman.

ROCKFORD
This is for your trouble.

Rockford starts away, then turns back.

ROCKFORD
One other thing... If I were you,
I wouldn't tell Grimes about

From the doorman's expression, we can see that he is sufficiently warned. Rockford heads back to his car, as we

This is one of those offbeat houses that are only two or three room shacks and cling to the side of the hill with a spectacular view of the city. Rockford goes to the door and rings the bell, then knocks hard with his knuckles.
After a moment, the door opens and Sara looks out at Rockford with sleep-ridden eyes, her expression questioning.

85-B INT. SARA'S HOUSE - NIGHT

ROCKFORD
I'm back on the case.

Sara stares at him for a long beat.

SARA
What took you so long?

ROCKFORD
May I come in?

Sara hesitates for a moment, then steps back and he enters. The interior of the house is wild. The walls are covered with paintings in vivid hues, but alive, and there is almost no furniture.

ROCKFORD
We got somebody interested in us.
. . . That means I turned over at least one of the right rocks.
(a beat)
Get dressed in something sexy...
I'm gonna offer you a chance to get some of your money back.

SARA
I don't know that I....

Rockford hustles her toward the bedroom.

ROCKFORD
I don't have time to argue about it... I got a doorman holding down the store... I gave him this phone number. He might get wise that he's being bluffed and screw up my action. Get moving! Something slinky.

He shoves her toward the bedroom, as we:

SARA
Slow-down, or I'll end up looking like the Bride of Frankenstein.

ROCKFORD
Just a few more blocks... I'll let you off on the corner. Remember, he's the big muscle-bound ape in the green shirt. He's probably got a nice bruise on the left side of his jaw.

SARA
You hit him?

ROCKFORD
Yeah.

SARA
How brave! I hope that doesn't cost extra.

ROCKFORD
You keep up this chicken-hearted routine of yours and it sure as hell will.

SARA
Okay, where's the poison?

ROCKFORD
It's not poison. What you take me for? It's just knock-out-drops.
(a beat)
Here.

He hands her a vial and she looks at it, then puts it in her handbag.

SARA
How much of my own money am I gonna earn back?

ROCKFORD
I usually pay my operatives twenty bucks an hour for this kind of thing.

SARA
Twenty bucks an hour to pick up some guy who's probably an emotional cripple and will try and rape me!?

ROCKFORD
He won't try and rape you.

SARA
I won't do it for less than fifty.

Rockford looks at her for a long moment.

ROCKFORD
Jesus, who sicked you onto me?

SARA

The cops.

ROCKFORD

(dry)

Well, at least that much figures...

(a beat)

Okay -- fifty.

Sara looks over at him and smiles. Rockford pulls the car over to the curb and stops.

ROCKFORD

And be careful...Just come on trampy...Don't talk too much.

SARA

I can handle it.

She gets out of the car and starts to walk away. Rockford calls her back.

ROCKFORD

Sara...be careful.

She smiles and turns away.

EXT. RESTAURANT - NIGHT - ANGLE - ROCKFORD'S CAR

He is seated in the front seat, waiting. He looks at his watch.

INSERT - WATCH

It reads: ten o'clock.

NEW ANGLE - ROCKFORD - NIGHT

It is much later. He looks at his watch.

INSERT - WATCH

It now reads eleven thirty.

BACK TO ROCKFORD

We can see that he is getting worried.
After a long moment, the door of the restaurant opens and Sara and Jerry Grimes exit the restaurant. Sara is holding onto Jerry's arm and is laughing. Jerry reaches down and slaps her on the ass, and laughs.

He looks at this with an expression of absolute disgust, then turns the ignition of his car and waits. After a long moment, the doorman returns with the Robin's egg-blue Jensen. Grimes and Sara get in the car and pull off. Rockford follows.

as the blue Jensen flashes past camera, Rockford's car is a careful distance behind.

Grimes is driving. He does indeed have a nice raspberry on the side of his chin. Sara is still holding his arm, which makes it a little awkward to shift the car. Sara reaches up and fingers the bruise on the side of Jerry Grimes' face.

SARA
(a little drunkenly)
What does the other guy look like, lover?

GRIMES
(lots of balls)
He's trashed up good. I musta busted half his ribs.

SARA
I like a man who can handle himself.

GRIMES
That's good, baby, 'cause you're in for a real treat.

He leers over at her.

The blue Jensen is parked out in front. Across the street is Rockford's car. Rockford looks at his watch, then gets out of the car and heads across the street. This is a very expensive high rise apartment building, complete with a doorman.
INT. JERRY GRIMES' APARTMENT - NIGHT

Jerry and Sara are sitting on the sofa. Jerry takes a sip from his drink. The apartment is professionally decorated with expensive antiques. A deal pad twenty floors up.

JERRY
Okay, baby, the social hour is over.

SARA (cooing)
Don't rush me, Jerry, I have to get in the mood....

JERRY
Mood? What mood? We ain't in high school, for God's sake.

Sara hands him his drink.

SARA
Let's just finish these first....

JERRY
What's with you, anyway? You're the squirreliest chick I been with in....

He looks at her.

JERRY
Wait a minute...?

SARA (hopefully) Something wrong?

JERRY
I know where I seen you... You used to go with Freddy Bader....

SARA
(disheartened)
No, I never knew Freddy.

INT. HALLWAY - NIGHT

Rockford is standing outside the door with his ear to the door, listening, but all he can hear is some mumbling coming from inside. He looks at his watch.
INT. APARTMENT - NIGHT

Jerry starts to paw Sara.

JERRY'S POINT OF VIEW - SARA

His vision gets blurry. She begins to go in and out of focus.

RESUME - JERRY AND SARA

Jerry gets to his feet and stumbles toward the door. Half-way there, he stops, turns, and looks back at Sara, then falls like cut timber, face forward on the floor.

ANGLE - SARA

She looks at Jerry Grimes for a beat, then gets off the sofa and hurries to the door and opens it. Rockford steps into the apartment, closes and locks the door. He looks at Jerry Grimes, who is out on the floor, then he looks at Sara whose shoulder strap on her gown is down.

ROCKFORD
Did you have to let him paw you like that?

SARA
Paw me? What are you talking about?

ROCKFORD
I saw you outside the bar, playing slap and tickle...I was right across the street.

SARA
What is this?

ROCKFORD
Forget it.
(a beat)
Let's go through this place....

He moves through the living room of the small apartment.

SARA
I mean, what was I supposed to do? I was trying to pick him up....

CONTINUED

ROCKFORD
I said forget it. Let's move quick.
I don't want him to wake up and catch us.

SARA
You aren't afraid of him, are you?

ROCKFORD
You're damn right I am.

Rockford moves across the room and begins to frisk the apartment. He opens a drawer in a console and we see that there are a lot of body building apparatus. Rockford takes out one of the squeeze grip things and tries to squeeze it closed; he doesn't get very far. He looks over at Sara, who's watching, and throws the gripper back into the cabinet and slams the door shut. He moves into the bedroom.

INT. BEDROOM - NIGHT

There is a large bowl on top of the dresser, which is full of two dollar win tickets. Rockford takes them out, looks at them as Sara follows him into the room.

SARA
What's that?

ROCKFORD
Losing tickets from the track...
(a beat)
Some big-time gambler we got here
...he saves his old tickets.

Rockford kneels down and starts going through the drawers.

SARA
Whatta we looking for?

ROCKFORD
I don't know...Something that'll tell us more about this guy...
(a beat)
Letters -- tax records -- anything.

As he is talking, he is going through the bottom drawer of the dresser. Sara goes over to the closet and opens it, begins checking the shelves. Rockford finds a photo album in a drawer, takes it out, and goes to the bed and starts looking through the album, flipping the pages, one by one, looking at them.
HIS POINT OF VIEW - THE ALBUM

Every one seems to be a night club photo, all of Jerry with his arm around beautiful girls in low-cut dresses.

RESUME - SARA AND ROCKFORD

She looks at him.

SARA
Did you find something?

ROCKFORD
Yeah, his trophy case.

CLOSE SHOT - PHOTO - NIGHT

It is a shot of Jerry Grimes. He has his arm around Mildred Elias. They are at a posh restaurant.

RESUME - ROCKFORD

He looks at the photograph for a long moment.

ROCKFORD
Well, we made one nice connection... (holds out book) Take a look at this.

She looks at the picture.

SARA
Who is it?

ROCKFORD
That's Mrs. Mildred Elias.

Sara looks at Rockford for a long moment. He is now lost in thought.

SARA
But I still don't see how that helps us?

ROCKFORD
Neither do I, but it is interesting... (a beat) Sara, do you have a picture of your father?

SARA

Yeah. In my wallet.

She digs into her purse and takes out a photograph and shows it to Rockford. He grabs her by the arm and leads her out of the apartment.

CUT TO

INT. NEWSPAPER MORGUE

Angel Martin has his back to Rockford and Sara as he is going through a large file.

ANGEL

Elias...William, come to Angel...

Let's see...No, not here.

He slams the drawer and moves over to another cabinet, pulls it open, and begins to dig around inside.

ANGEL

E...i...i....Here it is, yes....

He pulls out a folder and hands it over to Rockford.

ANGEL

Boy, this stuff is dusty...They wanted to put me down here at first to re-file, but I told 'em takes me a half-hour to look up a name in the phone book...I get the letters in the alphabet mixed up, so I have to keep running through it, y'know....

As he is talking, Rockford is going through the folder. He finally pulls out a clipping with a photograph on it, then lays the photograph of Harvey Butler down next to it.

CLOSE SHOT - THE TWO PICTURES

The two men bear absolutely no resemblance to one another. Elias is round-faced and bald. Butler is hawk-faced with lots of gray hair.

RESUME - THREE SHOT

Angel is looking over their shoulders.

ANGEL

You think these two guys got mixed up with one another? That maybe the cops buried the wrong guy?

CONTINUED

ROCKFORD

Hell no, they died ten months apart and Elias had an open casket funeral with all his friends there.

ANGEL

(after a moment)

Is that all you want, Tommy?

ROCKFORD

Yeah...Look, can I keep this?

ANGEL

Sure.

He shuts off the lights and heads out of the file room. As he is closing the door, he looks at Sara.

ANGEL

Tom and me go way back...We was in the pen together.

(a beat)

We was both framed.

ANGLE - SARA

Her head snaps around and she looks at Rockford with a startled look as the door to the filing room closes, cutting the rest of the scene from sight.

CUT TO

INT. ROCKFORD'S CAR - NIGHT

They are parked in front of the newspaper office. Rockford is looking at the news clipping. Sara is looking at him and is strangely quiet.

ROCKFORD

What did your father look like at the end?

SARA

What?

ROCKFORD

Well, you said he was a wino for about a year...That must've changed him quite a lot.

Sara thinks about this for a moment, then nods her head.

ROCKFORD

What'd he look like?

SARA

Old and frail...But he didn't even faintly resemble Mr. Elias there....

CONTINUED

Rockford taps the photograph on the steering wheel for a moment, then nods his head.

ROCKFORD

Yeah...I'll drive you home.

He starts the car and pulls out.

ROCKFORD

Sara, I want you to tell me about your father...Everything you can remember about him for the last year or so....

SARA

I don't think that will help.

ROCKFORD

It probably won't, but you never can tell...There's some kind of connection between your dad and the late Mr. Elias...We have to find it.

SARA

Well, there's not much to tell really...
...He used to be an advertising account executive...He made a good living and we had a very happy family life...Then after Mother died, he just went down hill...The next thing we knew he was on Skid Row.

ROCKFORD

Is there anything else besides your mother's death that could have caused him to give up like that? Is it possible there was another reason he started drinking?

SARA

(stiff)

He didn't give up...I mean he shouldn't have.

Sara now seems to lose herself in her memories. As she talks, her face becomes sad, close to tears.

SARA

I used to go to Skid Row and try and bring him home.

(a beat)

Once I caught him selling his blood to get money for more wine. I found out he was giving blood under three different names.

SARA (Cont'd)

He was actually bleeding himself to death...

(a beat)
Then once I couldn't find him for several weeks...I almost came apart because I was afraid he'd died and was buried some place and I'd never know where...I took time off from my work...I went down to Skid Row and prowled around...I was mugged and almost raped...I couldn't find him...I was sure he was dead....

Sara is now totally lost in the recollection. Rockford watches her with an expression of sorrow and respect.

SARA
Then one day I was down at the St. Anne Mission where they give out free meals...I started asking around for him...and I looked up and there he was...so drunk he didn't even recognize me...I took him out and fed him some food and asked him where he'd been....

ROCKFORD
What'd he say?

SARA
Nothing really...

(a beat)
He always liked to talk in metaphors...

(a beat)
A hold-over from the advertising profession. He would grin at me and say he'd been visiting the Elysian fields...or he had gone to the desert for his health.

ROCKFORD
When was this? What date?

SARA
I don't know...Sometime last year...I can't remember.

ROCKFORD
You said you took time off to try and find him...When was that?

Sara thinks about it for a moment, then reaches into her purse and pulls out her wallet. She removes a pocket-calendar and studies it for a moment.

SARA
It was in June of last year -- the first two weeks in June.

ROCKFORD
In other words, the time he was missing was just about the time Elias died.

Sara reacts to the connection. Rockford stares out the front window of the car, lost in his own thoughts. After a moment, Sara speaks:

SARA
What does it mean?

ROCKFORD
I don't know... Maybe nothing, but it's just another coincidence piled up on top of several others....

CUT TO

INT. SARA'S LIVING ROOM - NIGHT

Rockford is prowling the living room. There are no lamps in the living room, so the only light is coming from the view windows. Rockford is looking for a lamp.

ROCKFORD
Where's the lamp?

SARA'S VOICE
No lamps. Candles. Saves on electricity.

Rockford moves to a fireplace, takes up a candelabra, lights the candles. Over the fireplace is a large painting of Harvey Butler in his advertising days in conservative suit and tie. Rockford studies it with the candelabra, then sets it down. During this, we hear:

SARA'S VOICE
Were you really in prison, Tom?

ROCKFORD
Does it matter?

SARA'S VOICE
Of course it matters.

On this, Sara reappears. She has changed out of the slinky black dress into something more casual.

ROCKFORD
I did five years in the state pen.
For what?

ROCKFORD

Armed robbery.

SARA

Did you do it?

ROCKFORD

Would you believe me if I said no?

SARA

Probably not.

ROCKFORD

Okay, then why mess with it....

He turns and moves over to the candelabra and begins to study the two photographs. One is the news clipping, the other is the one from Jerry's album.

ROCKFORD

Did you check the hospitals during the time your father was missing?

Sara moves over toward him. She puts a hand on his shoulder and turns him around.

SARA

I'm sorry...That was mean. If you told me you were innocent, I'd believe you. I really would.

ROCKFORD

It's not important to me anymore.

(a beat)

It used to be...I wanted people to know I was innocent...I had a pardon from the governor saying it never happened...For a while, I had it framed hanging in my office...

(a beat)

One day I looked at it and it wasn't important anymore so I took it down.

SARA

And you think I ought to take my father's picture down?

ROCKFORD

I won't tell you what to do, Sara. I gave up that habit in prison. One of the few constructive things I learned there.

CONTINUED
SARA
I want to hear what you think.

ROCKFORD
(a long beat)
I think you're hurt that your father didn't turn to you when your mother died...Instead, he turned to a bottle of wine...
You can't make it up to him now.

SARA
She turns away from him and moves halfway across the room, then spins back on him.

But somebody did kill him and whoever it is should be caught.

ROCKFORD
The trick is to keep from getting cought yourself.
(a long beat)
You're talking to an expert. I spent five years of my life in that trap. It's hard to climb out.

A long moment follows, then Sara moves back to him, looks at him for a long beat, then reaches out and takes his hand.

SARA
(softly)
You're a sentimentalist. How strange....

ROCKFORD
Not really.
(a beat)
I like you, Sara.

There is another long silence before she answers and when she does, it is with a slight bit of surprise at the realization.

SARA
I like you, too.

Rockford pulls her near and kisses her. We hold for a long moment, then

INT. MILDRED ELIAS'S LIVING ROOM - NIGHT

Jerry Grimes is on the phone. Mildred Elias is sitting on the sofa nearby, with a worried look on her face. Intercut:

JERRY
I'll catch a flight to Vegas in the morning and call you then.

TALBOT
It's gonna cost you, Sweets. I don't do this kinda thing for favors.

JERRY
I know it's gonna cost. (a beat) Just get the plane.

TALBOT
It's gonna be ten grand. That includes everything.

JERRY
Okay, stay handy. (a beat) And Morrie, I'm buying you. Don't bring in some outta work bouncer.

TALBOT
Just call me. I'll be in the casino.

Jerry hangs up the phone and turns toward Mildred. She looks slightly alarmed.

MILDRED
Whatta you going to do? You're gonna kill somebody else.

JERRY Shut up.
Mildred gets to her feet and moves toward him. She is getting mad now.

MILDRED
No, I won't shut up. I don't want any killing. You never told me about killing that old wino. I don't want to be a part of any more killings.

Jerry grabs her and whacks her twice across the mouth, then jerks her forward.

JERRY
Listen, you silly bitch. We're in trouble. You got us in trouble and if I could get away with it, I'd pull your chain right now.

MILDRED
Stop it! Let go of me!

JERRY
I need twenty grand. Let's have it.

MILDRED
No! You're going to hire a killer! I won't.

He hits her again, then shoves her against the couch. She slams her head against the side of the sofa. Jerry grabs her throat and jams it back against the couch. Her eyes go wide with fright. Jerry starts talking in the soft, almost cooing voice he used when he killed Harvey Butler. We get the feeling he's lost control.

JERRY
You're doing fine, honey... Just fine... Just relax now and old Jerry will make it better...

Mildred begins to choke, her face gets red -- Jerry is about to strangle her.

MILDRED

The money... My money... No more money.

She seems to get through to him and he relaxes his grip. His manner seems to shift slightly.

JERRY

I need twenty grand.

MILDRED

I won't pay you to have someone

Jerry looks at her for a long moment.

No.

ROCKFORD
What is he, Dad?

JOSEPH
He's a janitor in the City Administrator's office.

Rockford makes a face.

ROCKFORD
Boy, you're sure one hell of a liar.

JOSEPH
I wasn't lying, Tommy. I wouldn't lie. Think about it... I told you he was cleaning up in the City Administrator's office. That's what I said.

ROCKFORD
Aww, Rocky, that's a bad joke from vaudeville.
(a beat)
Does he have a set of keys? Can he get me into City Hall?

JOSEPH
I don't know. It's Saturday.
ROCKFORD
I need help. Drive to Vegas and get him up. Tell him I'll meet him at City Hall in four hours.

JOSEPH
That's a two-hour drive from here, Tom. It's gonna cost ya.

ROCKFORD
I'll pay ya fifty bucks, plus welching privileges.

JOSEPH
(a long beat)
Tom, you're not in any trouble, are you?

ROCKFORD
No, Dad, I'm okay.

JOSEPH
Okay, I'll see ya in four hours.

RESUME - ROCKFORD AND SARA
Rockford hangs up and looks at Sara, who is smiling.

SARA
You aren't having much of a day for profits...You already gave me fifty and now your father gets fifty....

ROCKFORD
You're paying his fifty. That's expenses.

SARA
(dry)
You're really something....

ROCKFORD
Whatta you getting so up-tight about? I got you welching privileges. I didn't have to do that, y'know.

Rockford crosses to his desk on this and unlocks the bottom drawer. He takes out a tin box and places it on his desk and starts to unlock it.
I'll tell you how to do it...With any skill at all, you'll get him down to ten or twelve bucks.

Rockford opens the tin box.

SARA
(indicating box)
What's that?

ROCKFORD
That's my gat.

SARA
What?

ROCKFORD
My gun.

He opens the box and takes out a Smith & Wesson thirty-eight, six inch, and drops it in the side pocket of his coat.

SARA
You mean you didn't have a gun on you when I picked up Jerry?

No, why?

ROCKFORD

SARA (mad)
Well, what if he'd tried to rape me? I mean, I thought you were carrying a gun.

ROCKFORD
I can't. I haven't got a permit to carry a gun.

SARA
But you're a private investigator.

ROCKFORD
You oughta see what you gotta go through downtown to get a permit to carry a concealed weapon. It's impossible. Nobody's got permits except the guys on TV, and I figure they don't really count.

Rockford closes the tin box, puts it back in his desk drawer and slams it shut. On the slam:

EXT. MUNICIPAL BUILDING - DAY

There are two cars parked in front of the building. One of them is Rockford's.

INT. MUNICIPAL BUILDING - SECOND FLOOR - DAY

Joseph Rockford is with another man. The other man is Arnold Demura. He is about Joseph's age and is wearing a workman's outfit. As we watch, the elevator doors open and Rockford and Sara exit and head over to where Joseph and Arnold are standing.

JOSEPH
(handling introductions)
This is my son, Tom, and his client, Sara...I'd like you to meet Arnold Demura....

Rockford shakes hands.

ROCkFORD
Nice to meet you.
(to Joseph)
My father's told me so much about you.

Joseph Rockford grins at his son with real pleasure. Rockford looks at Arnold.

ROCKFORD
What I need is to find out who performed the marriage ceremony for Mr. and Mrs. William Elias.

ARNOLD
It must be pretty important, huh, to pull us all out of bed at six a.m.?

ROCKFORD
It is.

ARNOLD
(crafty)
How important?

Rockford looks over at his father.

JOSEPH
I didn't say anything to him....

ROCKFORD
It'll come outta your end, Rocky.

Joseph looks at Arnold.

JOSEPH
Forget the shakedown, Arnie. He ain't going for it.

Arnold nods his head, then leads them up the hall. He takes out a set of keys and opens a frosted glass door that has the words Civil Records printed on it in gold letter.

EXT. LAS VEGAS AIRPORT - DAY

A car pulls away from the terminal. Seated in the front seat are Morrie Talbot and Jerry Grimes. Grimes is looking at his watch as Morrie drives.

JERRY
Come on, move it.

TALBOT
Relax. It ain't far from here. Just over on Main.

INT. OFFICE - DAY

This is really a filing room. Arnold turns on the lights and moves over toward one end of the room. He moves down the aisle of filing cabinets and finally pauses in front of one, then pulls open the drawer.
TIGHT SHOT - THE DRAWER
As Arnold rummages through it, finally pulls out a folder and opens it up, then takes out a sheaf of papers.

NEW ANGLE - FULL
Arnold hands the papers to Rockford, who looks at them.

TIGHT SHOT - THE PAPERS
Zoom in to the name: Danford Baker - Minister.

RESUME - ROCKFORD
He hands the papers back and grabs Sara's arm and pulls her out of the office. Joseph looks over at Arnold.

JOSEPH
Nice kids.

Arnold grunts, as we:

INT. CAR - DAY
Rockford is driving fast.

SARA
What do you think is happening?

ROCKFORD
I'm not sure...I got a wild idea...
If it's right, it might explain everything.

SARA
Why won't you tell me?

ROCKFORD
I'm superstitious.

She looks over at him and doesn't have anything to say to that. Finally, she comes up with a reason.

EXT. WEDDING CHAPEL - DAY

The angle favors the street and we can see a car approaching from the distance. It slows down and turns into the driveway.

CLOSER - WEDDING CHAPEL - DAY

It is one of those cheesy little buildings with a cockroach-ridden motel behind it. Get hitched and laid in ten minutes. Talbot's car pulls up, both men get out, and enter the chapel. A sign out front reads: Danford Baker, Minister -- Weddings, Free Room with TV.

INT. WEDDING CHAPEL - DAY

Jerry and Talbot move forward. As they do, a wedding service is in progress. Danford Baker, a man in his mid-fifties, is marrying a couple who look like they are better off single. The motel maid and the janitor are the witnesses. His voice drones on as Jerry and Talbot come to a stop in the doorway of the chapel. The camera pans in on them as they watch, then they move back out of sight as the wedding continues.

BAKER
Do you, Carolyn Neal, take this man as your lawfully wedded husband to love and to cherish....

136-B PULL BACK TO FULL SHOT

The wedding is over and the newly married couple move off as Baker closes his Bible and places it on a small podium. The maid and janitor leave. As this is happening, Jerry and Talbot move into the room and approach him.

JERRY Mr. Baker?

Baker spins around and looks at them.

JERRY
Come on outside.

BAKER
I'm sorry, I don't understand... Where's the bride?

JERRY
(to Talbot)
Come on, let's go.

Jerry whips out a gun and takes Baker by the arm. They hustle him out of the wedding chapel.

136-C EXT. WEDDING CHAPEL - DAY

153  EXT. LANDING STRIP - DAY

as the Piper Apache roars down the strip and running along beside it, attempting to get in front, is Rockford's car.
as Rockford attempts to head the plane off, but it is already airborne, lifting off over his car and into the sky.

He screeches on the brakes and skids to a stop, then leans forward and looks up through the windshield at the plane, which is fast climbing out of sight. Sara looks at Rockford for a long moment.

SARA
What now?

ROCKFORD
We go back into town and I give all of this to the Las Vegas cops. Let them worry about picking Grimes and his buddy up.

SARA
Will you explain it to me...What the hell is going on?

ROCKFORD
I'll tell you on the way back.

He starts the car, turns it around, and heads back up the dirt road.

EXT. PIPER APACHE - IN FLIGHT - DAY

As we watch, the door is opened and a body falls from the plane. We pan it down from perhaps three or four thousand feet. It lands somewhere in the middle of a huge open lake.

as Grimes closes the door of the airplane and looks over at Talbot, who is flying.

GRIMES
What's left of him will end up getting eaten by the brine shrimp.

EXT. DIRT ROAD - DAY
Rockford's car moves along the dirt road.

ROCKFORD'S VOICE
Mildred and her ten-million-dollar bridegroom leave the wedding party in L.A., fly to Vegas, check into their motel ---

INT. THE CAR
Rockford glances at Sara for effect.

ROCKFORD

SARA (mouth ajar)
Before the wedding?

Rockford nods sagely and Sara stares out the window at the desert road. Finally:

SARA
You got the rest of it worked out?

ROCKFORD
Sure. She calls Jerry Grimes and tells him she just lost ten million bucks. Jerry says, 'You got all the papers signed? -- license, all that?' and Mildred says 'Yeah, but he's dead!'

EXT. THE CAR
Still moving along that dirt road.

ROCKFORD'S VOICE
And Jerry says, 'Sit tight, baby. Throw an electric blanket on him and keep him warm. I'll be there in two hours with a substitute. You're gonna get married first, and then call for a doctor!'

INT. THE CAR
Sara gets it all now.

CONTINUED
And he picked up my father because the age was right?

(nods)
Your father decided to stay in Vegas a while.
(pauses)
When he got back to L.A. he must've sobered up just long enough to find out Mildred Elias had inherited ten million bucks.

He wouldn't do that. Try to blackmail them? He wouldn't.

(shrugs)
Maybe he didn't. But they killed him.

There is a long moment of silence.

I wish we'd caught them.

We'll turn it back to the cops and eventually they will...
(a beat)
At least, we'll get it out of the inactive file.

Sara looks over at Rockford and nods. Her expression shows that she is feeling a mixture of emotions. Hold for a beat, and:

EXT. DIRT ROAD - DAY

as Rockford's car continues along the unpaved road toward the highway. It flashes past and the camera tilts up and in the blue morning sun we can see a speck of red begin to drop out of the sun. As it gets nearer, we can hear the single engine drone of the Piper Apache.

INT. ROCKFORD'S CAR - DAY

as they continue along, unaware of the impending danger.
EXT. DIRT ROAD - DAY

as the Piper Apache banks and makes a low pass at Rockford's car.

INT. ROCKFORD'S CAR - DAY

Rockford sees it first and pulls Sara down onto the floor, then jerks the wheel and skids the car around. As he does, there is the sound of rapid machine pistol fire. Several slugs pound into the car with deadening thunks.

NEW ANGLE - CAR - DAY

Rockford screams the car around and heads for a low hill off to one side of the road. The car bounces over the rough desert ground; the engine is beginning to miss badly; two of the slugs have been fired into the hood. The Piper Apache is now at the end of its pass and is banking around for another run at Rockford's car.

NEW ANGLE - SECOND PASS

The red airplane comes back toward Rockford's car. It is now flying only a few feet above the desert floor. As it heads at the car, we again hear the sound of machine pistol fire. Slugs pound into the car, which now shudders to a stop. The plane flashes past and climbs into the sky, banking around for another pass.

INT. ROCKFORD'S CAR - DAY

He is fumbling in his glove compartment for his pistol. He yells at Sara to get in the back seat. She scrambles into the back seat as, through the front windshield, we see the Piper Apache bank and head back toward the car. Rockford leans his hand on the door-jam and as the plane screams toward him, the machine pistol ripping holes in the metal, Rockford discharges three or four rounds at the plane. It swoops overhead and banks for another pass.

ROCKFORD

Damn!

SARA

What's wrong?

ROCKFORD

I missed him! This thing pulls to the right. I didn't correct for it.

EXT. CAR - DAY

It has caught fire and is beginning to smoulder.

INT. CAR

Sara smells the fire.

SARA
I think we're on fire.

Rockford is struggling with the revolver, trying to load it. He drops several slugs. He finally gets it loaded as the plane makes another pass, the machine pistol ripping slugs into the doors and through the top. As soon as it has passed and makes its banking turn, Rockford throws the door open and Sara and he jump out and start running away from the burning car. The plane now makes another climbing turn and then starts toward them with another pass.

ANGLE - ROCKFORD - SARA

as they run toward camera, the plane closing the ground behind them. After a few beats, we can hear the chattering of the machine pistol as the slugs tear up the ground around them. Rockford spins around and, aiming with both hands, fires the gun at the plane, which swoops overhead, about fifteen feet off the ground. Both he and Sara dive out of the way as the plane screams past.

THEIR POINT OF VIEW - THE AIRPLANE

It climbs into the sky and starts to make a banking turn. It stays in the turn and makes another pass at them, only this time it doesn't head directly at them but is off about five degrees.

ANGLE - ROCKFORD, SARA

They are flat on their stomachs, watching, then they scramble to their feet, ready to run, but the plane keeps heading in slightly the wrong direction, and then it drops a wing and plunges behind the low hill. After a moment, there is an explosion and a ball of flame.
NEW ANGLE - ROCKFORD AND SARA

They look at each other for a long moment, then move uncertainly toward the hill.

EXT. LAS VEGAS POLICE STATION - DAY

An old brick building which has been baked by the sun.

INT. POLICE SQUAD ROOM - DAY

This is bustling with activity; there are hookers, drunks and every kind of humanity. Amidst it all, officers in blue-striped pants seem to act as if there is an efficiency about it all. At one end of the room is a bank of three slot machines. Seated at the other end of the room is Tom Rockford. He is talking to a detective named Norm Mitchell. Mitchell is heavy-set and looks like he's perpetually angry. Sara is nearby, listening.

MITCHELL
Well, where did you get it?

ROCKFORD
What?

MITCHELL
The gun. You ain't got no permit to carry a gun.

ROCKFORD
Look, you're missing the point. Those guys probably killed a Minister named Danford Baker.

MITCHELL
His body wasn't found in the wreckage...Just Grimes and some guy named Talbot.

ROCKFORD
Did you call Detective Becker and give him the information I gave you?

Yeah.

MITCHELL

ROCKFORD And?

MITCHELL
He said he'd call back after he'd checked it.

CONTINUED
ROCKFORD
What about the signature cards on the record book of the Minister?
Have you checked 'em against the marriage license?

MITCHELL
We're doing all that.
(a beat)
Meanwhile, I want to know where you got that gun. You may not know it, Buster, but you can't go around shooting down light aircraft with hand guns.

The phone rings and Mitchell snatches it up.

MITCHELL
Mitchell.
(a beat) Yeah...
(a beat)
Yeah...Okay...Sure.
(a beat)
You know this Rockford guy?
(a beat)
Fine, but I ain't through with him yet. I'm gonna have an F.A.A. investigation, and I got two dead bodies.
(a beat)
I don't know, but I'm holding him on a gun law beef.

Rockford looks over at Sara, who looks really sad. He grins at her and shrugs.

MITCHELL
Okay, I'll tell him.

Mitchell hangs up the phone and looks at Rockford.

MITCHELL
That was Becker in L.A....He said to tell you he picked up Mrs. Elias.

SARA
Are you really going to hold him?

MITCHELL
You better believe it!

As this is happening, there is a commotion on the far side of the room. We can see that it is Joseph Rockford. He is arguing with a uniformed officer.

JOSEPH
No, I gotta see him. He's my son.

OFFICER
Relax, pop. He's in custody.

JOSEPH
For what?

OFFICER
Shooting down a light aircraft with a hand gun.

Joseph looks startled by this and then looks off across the room at Sara and Rockford.

RESUME - ROCKFORD, SARA, MITCHELL

Mitchell finally shrugs.

MITCHELL
Okay, Rockford...
(a beat)
I'm gonna take you back and book you now.

He stands up and Rockford looks at him for a moment.

ROCKFORD
What's the charge?

MITCHELL
Material witness till I get this all shook out.

He turns to Sara, who stands up.

MITCHELL
You can go, Miss.

She looks at Rockford for a long moment, then turns to Mitchell.

SARA
Could I have a moment with him?

Mitchell hesitates for a beat, then nods and takes a step away.

CONTINUED
Thanks, Tom... I'm sorry about all this... I feel responsible....

ROCKFORD
Well, they won't hold me long and I'll only charge you half-price for the time I spend in jail.

SARA
You're kidding?

ROCKFORD
(a grin)
Yeah.

Mitchell moves back to Rockford and Sara but before he can put his hand on Rockford's arm, Sara throws herself into his arms and gives him a giant hug, then they part and Mitchell leads Rockford away. Sara watches him go for a moment and then turns and moves over to where Joseph Rockford is standing. Together, they watch Rockford being led across the room toward the jail complex. Joseph is disgusted and turns to Sara.

JOSEPH
Look at that. He's back in the pokey. Last time, it took me five years to get him out... I had to hock my truck and everything to pay for the lawyers.

Sara looks over at him and says nothing.

JOSEPH
So how does he pay me back? Does he take over the truck and make an honest living? No! He turns into Sam Spade and says he's gonna get other people outta jail. He's gonna only handle closed cases... But what happens is he ends up in jail all the time himself instead...
(a beat)
Who the hell can figure him....

Sara seems to understand.

SARA
Maybe I can....

Next to the door to the jail is a sandwich stand with magazines and a bank of three slot machines. Rockford looks at the slots for a long moment, then over at Mitchell. Rockford reaches into his pocket and takes out a coin and puts it in the slot, pulls the handle and watches the lemons drop. He looks at Mitchell, who grins at him evilly.

ROCKFORD
I'll bet you don't get many winners in here.

MITCHELL
Ain't that the truth!

He takes Rockford by the arm and starts to lead him through the barred doors, as we freeze frame and
